

Take a look at the new Metropass!

Miami-Dade Transit introduces a new 2007 Metropass in January that includes the use of foil material.

Stamped foil is easy to identify due to its reflective metallic quality. Any pass that does not show the month stamped in foil will not be accepted as payment for the fare.

In addition, a signature strip has been added to the back side. Customers are encouraged to sign their passes immediately after purchasing.

Effective with the January Metropass, bus operators and Metrorail station security personnel should make passengers aware of the need to sign the back of the Metropass. However, transit personnel cannot deny entry to any customer with a genuine Miami-Dade-issued pass lacking a signature.

As customers become acquainted with the signature requirement, this new feature will be more strictly enforced.
